“STAMP Out Bullying was our first effort to extend our thinking from our core Olweus program. We know that core teaching is necessary for us to educate our entire school family on bullying. Mr. Banks works with the teachers and the students using all teaching and learning modalities. Teachers and students participate in difficult conversations about bullying experiences helping all stakeholders to realize the 'why' in what we are doing. With daily class meetings, a core curriculum, and Jay Banks' STAMP Out Bullying, our school has taken a giant step forward as we grow as a kind and caring school family for all.”

“Thank you for making the trip out to Oregon to teach us how to stamp out bullying. Your presentation was very well-received by the students. It was informative as well as entertaining. One third grader said to me afterwards, "He's not Jay Banks - he's Jay Leno!" The STAMP acronym has provided a vehicle for talking to my students about their peer difficulties. For the most part, they are remembering what the letters stand for and I am able to help them to see their role in the interaction with peers and what they can do differently next time. I use it as part of the psychoeducational process to help them understand that they have several strategies that they can use in order not to feel victimized.”

“While teaching my Algebra 1 students yesterday, I was a little frustrated because they were expressing difficulty in "remembering" some recent formulas needed in their mathematical calculations (or whatever they were doing!). So I asked them if they could remember S.T.A.M.P. - sure enough, they remembered every description for each letter! Proof again that humor, a good presentation, and meaningfulness truly work well together.”

“He had them at "hello"...Jay Banks gives children power over a topic that historically, renders children feeling powerless. The STAMP acronym and his entertaining, comedic routine capture the attention of students. He immediately engages them with hilarity while arming them with tools that they actually remember. Jay holds their attention, while enforcing concepts through repetition. This presentation is FUN and kids walk away with a sense of power. Jay Banks' program has opened a door of communication between kids, their parents, and their teachers.”

Jane Driscoll - West District Elementary PTO
Farmington, CT

“The S.T.A.M.P. acronym gave us a foundation for teachers and staff to use with our kids. We are working hard on building up our climate and this was a perfect fit! Your energy and enthusiasm gave our students the opportunity to dialogue and strategize about how to handle difficult situations. It was the perfect complement to our “Fill the Bucket” work we are doing. Teachers were thrilled with the balance of the presentation and carried it over into their classrooms with examples. This is important work and we appreciate your dedication to making this world a better place, one kid, one school at a time!”

“Mark Tornow, principal of Franklin Elementary said this year has been a good one in terms of bullying at FES but that it is a problem teachers and administrators have to deal with. ‘This type of program enables them to stand up for themselves,’ Tornow said. Teacher Susan Ramsay said she thinks programs like Banks can help children. “I really like that this was from the perspective of a child who is a victim and what they can do,” she said after the program. ‘Because so often a teacher can’t be there.’”

Barbara Esteves-Moore - Staff Writer
The Tennessean, Nashville, TN

“I like Jay’s style. He says that kids are like cars; they show up at the program with their windows up. He gets them laughing their heads off! Humor rolls the windows down.”

Timberly Whitfield - TV Host
The Hallmark Channel

“Jay Banks possesses the extraordinary gift of being able to grasp audiences of all ages through his humor. His messages of character and integrity are presented in an extraordinary program that leaves the audience wishing for more.”

Regenia Massey - Director of TRIO Programs
Mountain Empire Community College - Big Stone Gap, VA

“Jay is one of those unique persons who can make children AND adults laugh AND learn in the same program...EXCEPTIONAL!”

Phil Card - Actor, Writer, Producer
Walt Disney Productions / Epcot Entertainment - Orlando, FL

“The content helped support our Counseling Department’s Guidance curriculum. Students learned the importance of responsibility, encouraged them not to use verbal or physical violence, and provided them with strategies to “STAMP” out bullying if they find themselves the victim. Students were able to easily recall information following your program and I am confident it will play an important role in our community.”

Chad M. Walker - School Counselor
Edmondson Elementary School - Brentwood, TN

“I was amazed at Mr. Banks’ INSIGHT and humor as well as his ABILITY to reach DIVERSE audiences. His WIT is a joy to experience and to learn from. He asks PROFOUND questions pertaining to the topics being covered. He shares his HERITAGE as well as INVOLVING his audiences in the program. All of these activities testify to Mr. Banks’ value of LEARNING and ability to COMMUNICATE.”

Dr. Mike Henry - Director, Student Support Services
Southwest Virginia Community College - Richlands, VA

“Your presentation style and rapport with the students is second to none. You find innovative methods to allow student participation in your programs, which is a wonderful to insure comprehension and retention of these important topics. Thank you for taking the time to teach these meaningful programs to our youth. I look forward to having you and your programs in our schools for many years to come.”

Denise D. Webb - Principal
East Corinth Elementary School - Corinth, MS
(662) 286-5245

“The presentations he made were the most valuable and timely programs that I have seen here during my thirty plus years in the school system. He knows how to simultaneously entertain the students and get his message across. The students here are still talking about Jay Banks. His programs on bullying will have a lasting effect on our entire student body and staff.”

Gordon Matthews - School Counselor
Westwood Junior High School - Manchester, TN

“Pennedale Middle School was treated to slapstick comedy, song and dance mixed with a serious message about bullying. Mr. Banks’ energetic, enthusiastic, eye-opening performance kept the students dancing in the aisles as well as provided concrete strategies for students to use in bullying situations. His relevant and timely message included statistics and prevalence of bullying in middle school.”

Kathleen Matthews - 8th Grade Teacher
Pennedale Middle School, Lansdale, PA
(215) 368-2700

“We booked Jay Banks, sight unseen, to present a 2-hour program after lunch on the first day of a six week program knowing the students would be operating on less than 3 hours of sleep....and he delivered! Within minutes the entire audience was laughing, participating, listening intently, and above all, learning!”

Dr. Cheri Flow - Upward Bound Director
University of Montevallo - Montevallo, AL
(205) 665-6268

“It is to your credit that your presentation held the attention of our junior high students. Your stories, suggestions, and great humor made this presentation come alive. The students talked about this program for days. I especially liked the way you focused on the victims rather than the bullies. I use your STAMP logo when counseling students and we have placed posters in the building to remind students of your message. It is vital to help control the increasing amount of bullying in our schools.”
